

Convertible runtime graphical user interface

Abstract

Method to change Graphical User Interface that support runtime modification of the application's GUI without access to the application source code and/or needs no recompilation/restart of the application executable. This method allows the end-user to make runtime modifications of a widget's attributes and/or runtime conversion of widgets into different types of widgets